PART TWO: HOURS OF WORK AND TYPE OF EMPLOYMENT

2.1 HOURS OF WORK

- a) Hours of work shall not exceed eight per day, or 40 hours or 5 days per week, nor be less than two hours per day.
- b) All hours of work shall be continuous from the time of starting each day without any breaks; other than a rostered paid ten minute morning and afternoon refreshment break daily for each employee who works three or more hours that day, and a rostered unpaid thirty minute lunch break daily for each employee who works five or more hours that day.

2.2 ADDITIONAL HOURS

- a) Except as provided in sub clause 2.3 below, where an employee is required to work additional hours, hours in excess of 40 per week or 8 per day, shall be paid for at the rate of time and a half.
- b) By agreement between the employer and employee, time off in lieu may be taken instead of overtime payment. Time in lieu shall be on an hour off for an hour worked basis.

2.4 ANNUALISATION

- a) By agreement between an employer and an employee employed on a part year basis, projected earnings may be annualised. In the case of the Wellington Free Kindergarten Association, anyone employed on a part year basis shall have their earnings annualised. The employer and employee shall record this agreement in writing, along with the annualisation calculation. This will include the actual pay rate as well as the annualised rate.
- b) Annualisation is the process by which a part year employee's ordinary pay earnings, including annual leave and payment for public holidays, over a year are paid in equal fortnightly instalments throughout the 12 month period, for the purpose of regularity of earnings for the employee across times of the year that they are not provided with work by the employer.
- c) For the purposes of this provision, 'weekly earnings' in relation to
- Any paid parental leave entitlement in accordance with section 71T of the Parental Leave and Employment Protection Act 1987; or
 - Any entitlements under the Injury Prevention, Rehabilitation and Compensation Act 2001 shall mean the employee's hourly rate multiplied by the employee's actual (i.e. non annualised) weekly hours which shall be provided to the appropriate authorities if required to ensure that the employee is not disadvantaged through the annualisation agreement.

- d) An employee with annualised earnings remains entitled to the provisions of clause 2.2 – additional hours and 4.1 – public holidays. Any additional payments earned through working additional hours or on a public holiday shall be paid at the time they are earned.
- e) At the end of the 12 month period of annualisation, the employer shall calculate the remuneration that would have been earned had the employee not had annualised earnings, and shall calculate whether any additional remuneration is owing to the employee, or whether there has been an overpayment to the employee. The employer shall provide the results of the calculation to the employee. In the case of an underpayment the employee shall receive the additional remuneration, and in the case of an overpayment the employer shall deduct the overpayment from subsequent remuneration as per clause 3.9. Such a calculation shall also take place if the employee goes on leave without pay.
- f) If the employee's employment is to terminate, any overpayment shall be deducted from final pay. Two weeks written notice of any monies owed will be given, provided the proper notice of termination has been given, except in the case of serious misconduct.
- g) Where an employee under this clause seeks leave without pay for longer than two weeks, they shall be advised of the possibility of an overpayment.

PART EIGHT: EMPLOYMENT RELATIONSHIP PROBLEMS

8.1 SERVICES AVAILABLE FOR THE RESOLUTION OF EMPLOYMENT RELATIONSHIP PROBLEMS

What is an Employment Relationship Problem?

It is a problem between employee and employer. For example, it might be a personal grievance or a dispute about a provision in an employment agreement.

Resolving an Employment Relationship Problem

The employee and employer should first make a reasonable effort to discuss the problem and settle it by mutual agreement. (If it is a personal grievance, it must first be raised with the employer within 90 days - Personal Grievances are explained further below.)

An employee (or employer) has the right to be represented at any stage.

When a problem arises, union members should contact their local NZEI Te Riu Roa field officer for advice and representation.

Employers should contact an adviser/representative of choice.

Personal Grievances

A personal grievance is a particular type of employment relationship problem that normally must be raised with the employer within 90 days of the grievance arising.

An employee may have a personal grievance where:

- They have been dismissed without good reason, or the dismissal was not carried out properly.
- They have been treated unfairly.
- Their employment or a condition of their employment has been affected to their disadvantage by an unjustified action of their employer.
- They have experienced sexual or racial harassment, or have been discriminated against because of their involvement in a union or other employee organisation, or have suffered duress over membership or non-membership of a union or other employee organisation.
- They have been discriminated against in terms of the prohibited grounds of discrimination under the Human Rights Act 1993.

Note: The full meaning of the terms personal grievance, discrimination, sexual harassment, racial harassment, and duress, shall be the meaning given by sections 103 to 110 inclusive of the Employment Relations Act 2000 only. For ease of access these are attached at the end of this agreement as Appendix D.

As with other employment relationship problems, the parties should always try to resolve a personal grievance through discussion.

Either party can refer a personal grievance to the Employment Relations Service of the Department of Labour for mediation assistance, or to the Employment Relations Authority.

If the problem relates to a type of discrimination that can be the subject of a complaint to the Human Rights Commission under the Human Rights Act 1993, the person can either take a personal grievance, or complain to the Human Rights Commission, but not both. If in doubt, advice should be sought before deciding.

Services Available

To help resolve employment relationship problems, the Department of Labour provides:

An Information Service

This is free. It is available by contacting the Department of Labour or by phoning toll free 0800 800 863. The Department's Employment Relations Service internet address is www.ers.dol.govt.nz and can be contacted by e-mail at info@ers.dol.govt.nz.

Mediation Service

- The Mediation Service is a free and independent service available through the Department of Labour.
- This service helps to resolve employment relationship problems and generally to promote the smooth conduct of employment relationships.
- Mediation is a mutual problem solving process, with the aim of reaching an agreement, assisted by an independent third party.
- If the parties can't reach a settlement they can ask the mediator, in writing, to make a final and binding decision.

- A settlement reached through mediation and signed by the mediator at the request of the parties is final, binding and enforceable. Neither party can then take the matter any further and, either party can be made to comply with the agreed settlement by court order.
- If the problem is unresolved through mediation either party may apply to have the matter dealt with by the Employment Relations Authority.
- The Employment Relations Authority
- This Authority is an investigative body that operates in an informal way. It looks into the facts and makes a decision on the merits of the case and not on the legal technicalities.
- Either an employer or an employee can refer an unresolved employment relationship problem to the Authority by filing the appropriate forms.
- The Authority may call evidence, hold investigative meetings, or interview anyone involved. It can direct the parties to try mediation. If mediation is unsuitable or has not resolved the problem, the Authority will make a decision that is binding on all parties. Any party can contest the Authority's decision through the Employment Court.

Note: All employment relationship problems, including personal grievances and any disputes about the interpretation or application of this agreement, must be resolved under Parts 9 and 10 of the Employment Relations Act 2000.
